creativeprofile

Ray has over 30 years experience shooting wedding photography and has earned himself a reputation for being friendly, observant and highly creative. He attended and qualified at the Kodak School of Photography and has been awarded Licentiate of the British Institute of Professional Photography. Having gained these qualifications he offers his clients the reassurance that they are commissioning a truly 'professional' photographer for their wedding day.

Having waited patiently for the digital medium to reach the 'equivalent' quality of film based photography, he has recently started to shoot weddings entirely in a digital format using the highest quality camera and lenses available. Ray feels that working digitally gives him the flexibility to offer his clients either a traditional, reportage or mixed style of wedding photography.

When it finally comes to the clients wedding day, you will have peace of mind that Ray will be working in a professional and respectful manner and uses great assertiveness throughout the day, watching and gauging peoples movements, producing wedding photography that is full of life, poise and creative flair.
